Project Summary

There are three main components of my project: a flowchart, a glossary highlighting the most commonly used terms in Special Education, and finally, an explanation of the specific interventions for the most common disabilities identified in my school district. The final project has been compiled into a brochure, to share with CLD families who are entering the Special Education process in the district I work in. The brochure has been created, as a means of addressing my research question: what barriers impede the progress of CLD families entering the Special Education process and what strategies can be used to overcome them?

First, I created a flowchart for CLD families who are beginning the Special Education process in my district. The flowchart is a tool for parents interested in how the U.S. Special Education system works, without the technical jargon and where necessary, terms have been exclusively defined in the glossary. After several years of attending IEP's and conferences for CLD, and more specifically ELL families being referred to Special Education, I have identified many misconceptions about the entire Special Education process in the United States. I believe a flowchart will be a helpful and supportive visual tool that will clarify these misconceptions.

The flowchart begins when a teacher or caregiver has a concern about a student's academic growth. The chart will walk through the following processes: pre-referral, evaluation, placement, and continued progress monitoring through the IEP. The language will be basic, in the sense that technical jargon will be avoided. The goal is that this project will decrease barriers, and promote collaboration between Special Education professionals and families of CLD students.

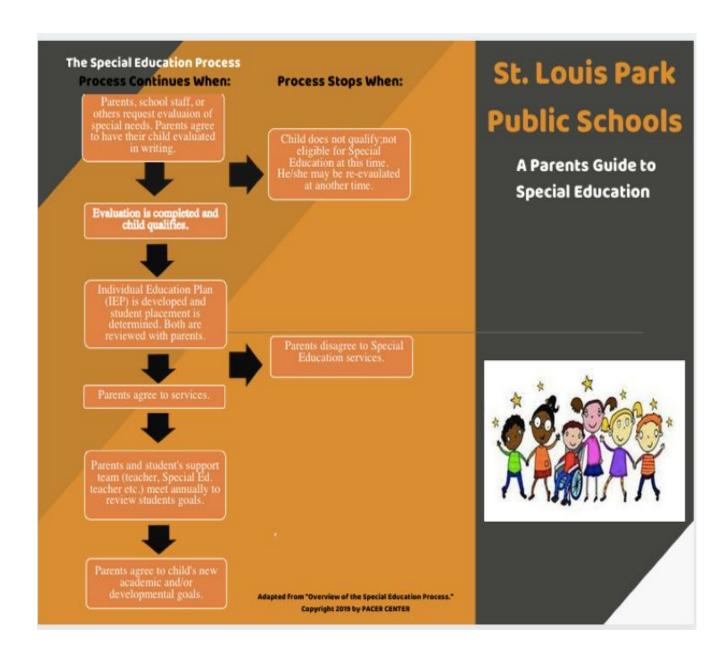

Second, I created a glossary of terms that are commonly used in Special Education. In my experiences participating and observing Special Education meetings, I have heard these terms loosely flow throughout the conversations, but little is done to explain to parents what they actually mean for their child. The list is concise, only focusing on the most common jargon parents are exposed to.

Third, I have highlighted the interventions implemented for the most common disabilities students' are identified for under Special Education services in my school. These include:

Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD), Developmental Delay (DD), and Other Health Disabilities (OHD). In this part of the brochure, examples of supportive services and interventions are explained based on the Special Education diagnosis.

In creating this brochure, my goal is that parents and caregivers will get a better understanding of what they are giving consent to, or declining when they agree or disagree to have their child placed in Special Education. The brochure will be translated into Somali and Spanish, to maintain equitable practices. In conversations I have had with ELL and CLD families, I have identified a common misconception. Parents often believe that their child will be placed with a paraprofessional who will "shadow" their child the entire school day. Parents have expressed concern that this type of intervention will create a stigma around their child, and as a result, the parent declines Special Education. This is problematic because often times the disability may only signify that the student will be pulled out for a small portion of their day with other students to work on areas like social skills. My hope is that this brochure will assist CLD families in making the best decision for their child.

What do I do if my child's teacher or I have a concern regarding my child's development and/or academic progress?

The Special Education system and process of referring children for Special Education varies around the world. Different countries and cultures have different ways of educating children with special needs. Here, at Saint Louis Park School District, we value an educational environment that is rich with many types of learners. Our community and staff values diversity of language, race, cultural backgrounds, and ability levels. We believe that all students benefit from being in a class with their same-aged classmates for as much of the day as possible. We do our best to provide student's whom classify under the large umbrella of special needs an integrative learning environment where they are able to be participants in the general education classroom for as much of their day as possible.

The Special Education Process can feel overwhelming for any family at first. There is a lot of new information to understand. We want you to know that your child's academic success and development is our primary goal. It is important that you completely understand the process and language that may be used when working with your child's teachers and support team, so that together we can come up with the best plan for your child.

In this brochure, we have created a flow-chart of the Special Education process, common terms in the Special Education process, and some examples of Special Education practices for you to have a clear visual of the Special Education process in SLP schools. Our goal is to work as a team to make sure your child is receiving a challenging curriculum where be/she can feel successful in school. We want you to ask questions, and offer your expertise- after all, you know your child best! Please contact Julia Zanabria with Questions: 612-360-4558

Common Terms in the Special Education Process:

IDEA: The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) is the federal law that guarantees individuals the right to be educated in an environment as closely with their peers without disabilities as possible.

Accommodation: An accommodation is a change in teaching techniques, materials or environment. For example, if your child has trouble with writing, she might be allowed to answer test questions orally. Even with that accommodation, though, she's expected to learn the same content as other kids.

Modification: A modification is a change in what a student is expected to learn and demonstrate. For example, instead of being asked to write an essay analyzing the benefits of protecting our water sources, your child might be asked to describe in writing two facts about where we get our water supply.

IEP: An Individualized Education Plan (IEP) is a legal document. If your child qualifies for Special Education, this is a very important document for you and your child. It explains your child's educational goals, academic challenges and strengths. It describes how he/she is currently doing academically. It also lists when and where your child will receive Special Education services.

What does the Special Education Teacher do?

Depending on the disability your child has been diagnosed with, teachers and other staff will help your child in different ways so that your child can be successful in school. These are some of the ways we do this:

Communication Skills: If a student has trouble communicating verbally, his/her Special Education teacher may create picture cards for the student to use when he/she needs help or has a request. The student would be taught how to use the picture cards to support their learning. For example, if the student needs to use the bathroom but can not express that in words, he would show the teacher a picture card for "bathroom." These cards would be used in all environments where the student is present.

Social Skills: If a student struggles to act appropriatly with his classmates or teachers, the Special Education teacher may practice reciprocal conversations (turn-taking), or creating friendship groups with other students where the student can learn important social skills that will help him/her make friends and be more successful in class.

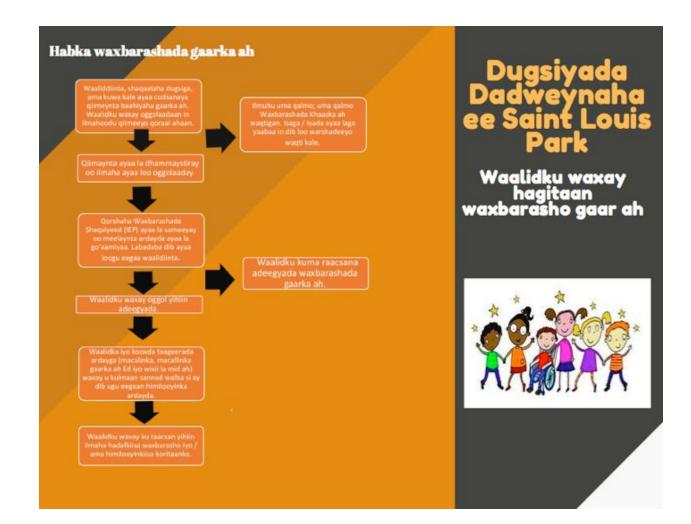

Behavior Skills: Teachers may use behavior modification if the student is struggling with behavior that is getting in the way of his learning. Behavior modification is rewarding the student (with a sticker, star etc.) when he is showing the desired behavior. The classroom teacher and/or support staff would use this intervention throughout the student's school day for as long as needed, until the behavior has improved.

Work Completion Skills: If a students if having difficulty completing his classwork, Special Education teachers, support staff, and classroom teachers may help the student complete non-preferred activities. Behavior modification (rewarding the desired outcome) may be used for work completion, until the student understands the practice of finishing his work. Teachers may also help students with organizational skills to keep their work organized. For example, teaching the student to use a daily planner with homework assignments, or color-coding folders to help stay organized.

Academic Skills: If a student has difficulty understanding the content that the teacher is teaching, Special Education staff may take the student into a small group setting with less distractions than in the classroom. They may work on skills like letter and number writing, or additional time spent in any academic area they are struggling with.

¿Qué hago si el maestro de mi hijo o yo tenemos una inquietud con respecto al desarrollo y / o progreso académico de mi hijo?

El sistema de educación especial y el proceso de derivación de niños para educación especial varía en todo el mundo. Diferentes países y culturas tienen diferentes formas de educar a los niños con necesidades especiales. Aqui, en el distrito escolar de Saint Louis Park, valoramos un entorno educativo rico en muchos tipos de alumnos. Nuestra comunidad y nuestro personal valoran la diversidad de idioma, raza, antecedentes culturales y niveles de habilidad. Creemos que todos los estudiantes se benefician de estar en una clase con sus compañeros de la misma edad durante la mayor parte del día posible. Hacemos nuestro mejor esfuerzo para proporcionar a los estudiantes que clasifican bajo el amplio paraguas de necesidades especiales un ambiente de aprendizaje integrador donde puedan participar en el aula de educación general durante la mayor parte de su día como sea posible.

El proceso de educación especial puede ser abrumador para cualquier familia al principio, Hay mucha información mueva que entender. Queremos que sepa que el éxito académico y el desarrollo de su hijo es nuestro objetivo principal. Es importante que comprenda completamente el proceso y el lenguaje que se pueden usar al trabajar con los maestros y el equipo de apoyo de su hijo, para que jugtos podamos idear el mejor plan para su hijo.

En este fotato, hemos creado un diagrama de flujo del proceso de Educación Especial, términos comunes en el proceso de Educación Especial y algunse ejemplos de prácticas de Educación Especial para que tenga una visión clara del proceso de Educación Especial en las escuelas SLP. Nuestro objetivo es trabajar en equipo para aseguramos de que su hijo reciba un plan de estudios desafiante donde pueda sentirse existos en la escuela. Queremos que haga preguntas y ofrezca su experiencia; después de todo, ¡conoce mejor a su hijo!

Términos comunes en el Educación Especial:

IDEA: La Ley de Educación para Individuos con Discapacidades (IDEA) es la ley federal que garantiza a las personas el derecho a ser educado en un entorno tan cercano con sus compañeros sin discapacidad como sea posible.

Alojamiento: Un alojamiento es un cambio en Técnicas de enseñanza, materiales o entorno. Por ejemplo, si su hijo tiene problemas para escribir, ella podría permitirsele responder preguntas de la prueba oralmente. Incluso con ese alojamiento, sin embargo, se espera que ella aprende el mismo contenido que otros niños.

Modificación: Una modificación es un cambio en lo que

Se espera que el estudiante aprenda y demuestre. Por ejemplo, en lugar de que se le pida que escriba un ensavo.

analizando los beneficios de proteger nuestras fuentes de agua, se le puede pedir a su hijo que describa por escrito dos datos sobre dónde obtenemos nuestro suministro de agua.

IEP: un plan de educación individualizado (IEP) es legal documento. Si su hijo califica para Educación Especial, Este es un documento muy importante para usted y su niño. Explica los objetivos educativos de su hijo, desafíos académicos y fortalezas. Describe cómo él / ella está haciendo actualmente académicamente. También enumera cuándo y dónde recibirá su hijo los servicios en español.

¿Qué hace el maestro de educación especial?

Dependiendo de la discapocidad que le hayan diagnosticado a su hijo, maestros y otro personal ayuderán a su hijo de diferentes manoras para que su hijo puede tener delto en la escuela, Estas son algunas de las fornas en que hacemos

Most of the research for this project was done by talking with my content expert, Laurie Erickson. I wanted to make sure that the information I was going to put in this brochure was relevant to our district. She provided and guided me through the most recent practices for Special Education in the district where we work.
